Liberal arts degree jobs are more available in a diverse range of fields than ever before. According to the most recent salary survey published by the National Association of Colleges and Employers (NACE) average starting salaries for liberal arts majors have risen to about $40,000, annually. Lisa Ashworth, Assistant Director of Alumni Relations and Annual Giving, Earlham College: Having worked in Higher Education for 6 years, Lisa Ashworth has spent the past year and a half working for Earlham College as an assistant director of alumni relations and annual giving. A seasoned technology, marketing, and digital professional, Jessie Adcock has nearly two decades of experience in the high-tech sector. Currently serving as a Chief Digital Officer with the City of Vancouver, Jessie is dedicated to transforming, modernizing and increasing access to government services, with the goal of enhancing and enriching public engagement. I think Balaji gave a great answer on the differences between the two from a conservative viewpoint, but in order to understand both, the question also needs an answer from a liberal worldview, so here goes...
